A One-Stop Resource for All Things Lupus

If you have been affected by lupus you may be looking for answers, support, or even to connect with others like you. Look no further. The National Resource Center on Lupus is designed to help improve one's life journey with lupus – from the initial process of asking “could it be lupus?” to ensuring that those diagnosed with the disease are equipped with resources to manage it effectively. This living collection of up-to-date information on lupus will provide you the answers you want, when you need them.